

Poetry to carry (grupo English IV)

Salinas Pueyo, Concha

Thanks a lot!

This is my proposal for the poem:

My husband goes with others,
and I do not grieve for that,
that the leftovers of my house
in someone else's trash might end up

My adjectives are: rage, jealousy, careless

18:27

Laplana Pardinilla, Mª Concepción

No estoy segura de si es traducción o invención. Hago un medio medio...

"I dont care, the porks can eat them"

And the poetry of these hatless women has suggested me the ingenious, the intelligence, the bravery, the fun...and , "it's not your business" .And it has also remembered me the Gloria Gaynor song " I will survive"

11:50

Gomez España, Mª Cruz

My last verse is:

I throw them to vermin

This poem suggest to me
Strength, intelligence and indifference

13:58

Buil Arauz, Silvia

My husband goes with others, and I do not grieve for that, that the leftovers of my house have to be recycled.

Indiferente, angry

My adjectives are: rage, jealousy, careless

14:15

Montoliu Fortuño, Alix

!K

My husband goes with others, and I do not grieve for that, that the leftovers of my house, go out the door with no way back.

It suggest me: disappointed, indifferent, disengagement, proud.

Muy husband goes with others, and I do not grieve for that.

That te leftovers of my house.

¿Where are they?, not here for a long.

So, I have not feel guilty anymore, I am of course tyred but proud of me also.
